

ERRIN WRITER & EDITOR SOCIAL MEDIA MARKETING

Errin is thrilled to be a part of Planet Fassa and feels that it has fit into her life better than she could have ever dreamed. Every day, she is gaining invaluable experience that directly compliments her degrees and loves being able to put to practice what she is learning through her courses. Errin is the person behind Planet Fassa's Twitter and Facebook accounts, writes and edits content for Planet Fassa, creates fun activities, and anything else that needs to be done. Planet Fassa has given her so many new opportunities to try things she has never done before such as marketing and social media marketing. She believes wholeheartedly in this company and stands behind everything Planet Fassa represents!

She is currently finishing her Master's degree in Professional and Technical Writing at DePaul University. She also has a Bachelor's degree in Anthropology from Fort Lewis College in Durango, Colorado. Errin absolutely loves writing, reading, and discovered that she loves to edit! She enjoys school (most of the time) and continually learning new things and gaining new insight into this big, crazy world.

On a more personal note, she is a dog-lover, has a super cute stepdaughter, Lily, and an amazing partner, Davey. She lives in the Chicago suburbs and her family lives less than 10 minutes away. Errin enjoys biking (leisurely – not a cyclist!), gardening, being outside, playing music, singing, crafting, talking to people, and trying to find the best way to live and be the happiest, healthiest person she can be!